Your website is designed so the widest possible range of web users can access it without any specialised technological effort. That means that they don't have to install any special browser or plug-ins. I exclusively use standard HTML 4 according to the W3C guidelines. This guarantees that your website will work on almost any computer - new or old - and that those who have protected themselves from viruses, hackers and other harmful programs can also see the website on their computers.

We need to make sure that your website not only works as it should on the most modern machines, but also on computers that are up to five years old and have remained unchanged since they started operation, so we thoroughly test the website on various computers with all of the web browsers, operating systems and screen sizes currently in use:

- All common versions of Netscape and MS Internet Explorer from version 3 onwards
- Operating Systems: Windows 95, 98, ME, NT, 2000, XP and Linux
- Screen sizes from 15" to 24"
